

I have had my cell phone with one company since the early 1990's. I am looking to get a new phone and may change companies. The biggest problem I have with this is that if I change companies I will not be able to keep my phone number. I have many contacts that have this number and would have no way of getting a new phone number to them all. This is my biggest concern in the use of cell phones. I need to be able to keep the same phone number no matter what service I use.
